More than 100 photographs were entered in the Picturing Nutley contest. Winners were chosen by Board of the Nutley Historical Society.

“The beauty of the photographs is nothing short of amazing,” says Barry Lenson, Art Historian of the Nutley Historical Society, “and the imagination of the photographers was something to behold. Every single photographer who entered should be proud to have taken part in this project, which documents the great beauty of our town.”

An exhibition of submitted photos will be held at the Nutley Public Library this summer, with details to be announced soon.

About the Nutley Historical Society

The Nutley Historical Society was founded in 1945 when a group of concerned Nutley citizens decided to establish the Nutley Historical Society and Museum in the historic brick Church Street School which is located at 65 Church Street, Nutley. The beautiful and historic Museum, built in 1875, is on the National Register of Historic Places and is the envy of many other civic historical societies in New Jersey. The Museum holds a series of open houses, lectures, tours and other events that are attended by more than 500 Nutleyites every year, as well as by visitors from other towns and states. Other programs include college scholarships given to Nutley Students, special exhibitions in the Nutley Library and elsewhere, and a vibrant program of other events.
